Dear Mr. [Redacted]

STATINTL

Thank you for your letter of September 11 regarding the [Redacted] project.

STATINTL

[Redacted] had informed me of your visit and of the plan which you had in mind. As I am sure he made clear to you, the Psychological Strategy Board itself does not engage in actual operations. As a result, if an undertaking such as yours were to be assisted or sponsored in any way by the Federal Government, this would have to be done by one of the operating departments or agencies.

STATINTL

[Redacted] others of my staff have talked to the interested departments as to their view of the feasibility and desirability of your project. They are as interested as you are in exploring every practical means of conveying information to all peoples, including the Russians. They are also confident, to use your words, of the "potential good-will of the Russian people if contacted and informed of our sentiments." Review of available means of communication is a continuous process within the Government and all of us feel the need to keep on exploring new ideas. If future developments prove the timeliness and feasibility of your suggestion, please be assured that we will get in touch with you to ask further advice.

In closing I would like to thank you again for your interest in our work. We are always glad to have suggestions from people who have specially studied the subject as well as from the public at large.

Sincerely yours,

/s/
